SMT. SAVITRIBAI PHULE

- Savitribai Phule was a famous social activist and poet from India.
- Born on January 3, 1831, she hailed from Maharashtra.
- She bravely fought for women's rights, especially their right to education.
- Along with her husband, Jyotirao Phule, she started the first girls' school in Pune, Kanyashulkriya, which laid the foundation for future girls' schools.
- She often stood against child marriage and dowry system.
- In a field for writings about equality and social justice messages.
- Sadly, she passed away in 1890, but her legacy still shines bright.
- Many institutions in India are named after her, celebrating her spirit.
- Today, this is remembered as a day celebrating women's rights and the role of the teacher.
- In the year 1930, a school for untouchable girls was started by Savitribai Phule.
